

NovaTech Solutions
Corporate Email Policy

1.
Corporate email must be used for official company business.
 2.
Employees should use approved mailing lists when communicating company-wide announcements.
 3.
Sensitive information should not be sent to personal email accounts.
- Synthetic internal document created for the Week 5 RAG evaluation assignment.

Page 1

Additional Policy Administration

Policy Administration: The Email Policy applies to employees and relevant personnel whose work is covered by this policy. Employees are expected to understand the requirements that apply to their responsibilities and follow the procedures defined by the company.

Policy Responsibilities: Managers are responsible for communicating applicable requirements to team members and supporting consistent implementation. Employees should raise questions or request clarification through their normal management or administrative channel when a requirement is unclear.

Records and Documentation: Where this policy requires a request, notification, approval, report, or other documented action, the relevant information should be complete and accurate. Company records associated with policy administration should be retained according to applicable internal record-handling requirements.

Exceptions: Exceptions to this policy should not be assumed. Where an exception is necessary, the employee should obtain appropriate authorization through the responsible department before taking an action that would otherwise fall outside the normal procedure.

Compliance: Employees are expected to comply with applicable company procedures and cooperate with reasonable administrative checks related to this policy. Repeated or deliberate failure to follow applicable requirements may be reviewed by the appropriate company function.

Review and Updates: Company policies may be reviewed periodically to ensure that procedures remain appropriate for business needs. When an updated version is formally issued, employees should follow the current approved version and discontinue reliance on superseded instructions.

Questions and Support: Questions concerning interpretation or implementation should be directed to the department responsible for maintaining the policy. Employees should provide sufficient context when requesting assistance so that the responsible team can provide an accurate response.

Implementation Guidance: Normal business judgment should be used when applying this policy together with other applicable company requirements. If two requirements appear to conflict, employees should pause the affected action and seek clarification from the responsible department rather than making an unsupported assumption.

Administrative Note: This section provides general implementation guidance for the synthetic evaluation corpus. It does not replace or modify the numbered policy requirements stated earlier in the document. Employees should use the specific policy requirements as the authoritative rules for the subject covered by this document.

Administrative Note: This section provides general implementation guidance for the synthetic evaluation corpus. It does not replace or modify the numbered policy requirements stated earlier in the document. Employees should use the specific policy requirements as the authoritative rules for the subject covered by this document.